To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing in support of Wincey Terry's NanaBabies, a 501 (c) (3) non-profit organization that produces musical stage plays at school assemblies for underserved K-12 students throughout New Jersey.

For the past 18 years, Wincey and her talented multicultural troupe have entertained and educated thousands of students in hundreds of schools throughout the state about African, Latino, and women's history as well as alcohol and drug awareness. Principals, administrators, and teachers extol Wincey's professionalism, praise the curricular quality of her materials, and applaud her troupe of entertainers, who are not only talented performers but also excellent role models.

Music is a language that knows no barriers. Wincey takes full advantage of this by using her motivational concerts to realize NanaBabies' mission, which is to teach self-esteem and racial tolerance.

New Jersey's population is one of the most diverse in the country. A culturally based program like Wincey's, which celebrates diversity while promoting equality, is of inestimable value.

Very truly yours,
